1986-87 has been an achievement for Santa Fe High School. Your school won exemplary status in six separate programs; that translates into outstanding team effort and individuals achievements. It is always difficult to leave a well-lighted room to step out on a dark and unknown road. Team effort and individual achievement will light your way, Success is Pride

The boys were in there fighting During every single game, They tried to score those touchdowns By the victories never came men, backs, and ends Receivers - and the rest. Although they didn't seem to click. They always did their best It's just that busy lady .uck Forgot our team this Yall. The walked right out on Santa Fe Each time they took the ball. So as the season closes, Let's give a great big cheer For Santa Fe's fighting football team Who tried so hard this year.

Endless Beginnings

Exotic dresses, snappy fuxedos, excitement, and romance were all a part of "Endless Beginnings," the theme of this year's Winter Formal. The Student League sponsored the same or January 17, at Lakewood's Center at Sycamore Plaza, Each couple burchased a ticket for $45. This included dinner, dancing, roses, keychains and frames that had the theme of the formal printed on them. Dinner was served at 8 p.m. and was followed by dancing that ended at midnight. The buffet dinner included enchiladas, chicken, chili rellenos, rice, bears, fresh fruit, and tortillas. The romantic music during dinner and the fast-slow mixes afterwards were by Uranium. Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, Mr. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Campos, and Ms. Salcido were the chaperones for the evening. All of the couples seemed to have a very nice time. All in all the dance was a memory filled with endless beginnings.

Reflections of the Past, Images of the Future

In 1987 we celebrate the Thirtieth class to graduate from Santa Fe High. It was with this knowledge that this annual was created. Our cover design and feature of some of the faculty members reflect this fact.

The cover this year, as you may have noticed, is quite different from any produced in past years. It was intended to capture your imagination and spark your interest. When you look at it please look not only at the front but also the back and try to see the concept behind it. The cover is a whole picture, with the back as the left side and the front as the right side. The two indians are supposed to be looking at the same view, from the same window, in different time periods. The older Chief, on the front, trying to imagine the things to come and the younger Chief looking back at how things were

The theme, or title should be read Reflections of the Past, Images of the Future. It is from our past that we know who we are, where we came from and from the past we can learn our own shortcomings and perhaps discover where we are going. All of us, no doubt, have imagined a highly technological future, a place where luxury, sophistication, and creature comforts are par for the course. It is this utopic future people have dreamt of for ages. Perhaps living, as we do, on the brink of so many astonishing advancements is science, space travel, and medicine makes us believe in this perfect world called the future

It is this belief that keeps us moving, dreaming and living. Looking back helps give us perspective on the future, and looking forward gives us the hope to pursue our dreams. Reflections of the Past, Images of the Future

As graduation draws near it would be nice to say that the years were filled with fun and went by smoothly but of course, there were times of difficulty. Together we have laughed, cried and hopefully grown from the experience. Now we need only to reflect on our past and attempt to imagine a brighter future.
